"I'M BUSY, WHY SHOULD I CARE ABOUT THIS?"

- Polonium was two oddballs stuck outside of any scene but who suddenly decided that they wanted to make death metal
- The result is a mid-90's metal record that has all the double bass drum and jarring time signatures that were good without any of the shitty production or lousy vocals that weren't
- This band later evolved into the Austerity Program, which is a selling point for a very specific type of music-buying weirdo
- There's upcoming features from Brooklyn Vegan, MetalSucks, Sonic Masala, Mowlo (at least)
- Decibel Magazine's Deciblog featured the track "Bastard", calling it "thoroughly punishing" which is a compliment for this type of music

CREDITS - Recorded by Justin Foley at Kerguelen Studio (Astoria, NYC) between 2013 and 2015.
Mastered by Carl Saff in Chicago, IL.
